REPORT

Electronic and communications engineering is the utilization of science and math applied to practical problems in the field of communications. Can we imagine our daily life without mobile phone, laptop (computer), television, tablets, digital watch, internet banking, ATM cards, Wi-Fi, internet connection, microwave Owen and many more gadgets and communication systems. No, we cannot. All these are possible due to Electronics & Communication Engineering (ECE). As we look into future, robots will also be part of our lives very soon and embedded electronics which is a sub branch of electronics play an important role in this. All of this makes ECE an interesting field to study and work.

Electronics & Communication Engineering deals with the electronic devices, circuits, communication equipments like transmitter, receiver, integrated circuits (IC). It also deals with basic electronics, analog and digital transmission & reception of data, voice and video (Example AM, FM, DTH), microprocessors, satellite communication, microwave engineering, antennae and wave progression.

ECHO (Electronics and Communication Heuristic Organization) has been started 30 years before in KSRMCE, aiming to motivate the students towards the technology and trends that are currently existing. It provides the awareness in the students about the advancements in the ECE field and to improve the communication skills and presentation skills. ECE is one of the largest and fastest growing fields of engineering. The present Global Technology revolution is changing the world and is offering challenging opportunities to specifically Engineers.

ECHO conducted the event "JUST A MINUTE" on 20-6-2021 at 10 AM in virtual mode. The event planned to conduct using Google classroom. 43 students from IV, VI and VII semesters attended the event and 14 students actively participated. Several topics were delivered and three best presented topics are nominated as winners.
